PERSEVERANCE LEADS TO VICTORY!

COMPLETION OF COAST ROAD IS ASSURED AFTER HARD STRUGGLE

Efforts Of County Supervisors Crowned By Success Through Granting Of Funds By State Highway Commission This Week—Federal Money For Rights Of Way.

Twelve years a bitter disappointment!
Twelve years of discouraging obstacles!
Twelve years of empty promises!

And then success, achievement, the realization of a long cherished dream — SAN MATEO COUNTY'S COAST ROAD!

Briefly that tells the story of a dramatic fight by Supervisor Manuel Francis, Half MoonBay, and his colleague, Supervisor Al Witt Jr., Daly City, (who joined the Coastside supervisor later) in a struggle to make possible one of San Mateo County's greatest projects!

Their efforts were crowned with success last week when during an appearance before the State Highway Commission, $255,000 for construction of the third and most vital sector of the Coast road, which is around Pedro Mountain, was allocated to the project.

Fifty thousand dollars more was granted for the purchase of rights of way.

The money represents federal funds.

There was a caravan of civic minded citizens who accompanied the Supervisorial Board on its mission to Sacramento last week. Some came from San Francisco. Others from Santa Cruz and a great delegation of San Mateans was present.

But it is doubtful if anyone in that entire assemblage realized the struggle that had ensued before the realization of such success.

Nobody except Supervisors Francis and Witt, the former the grizzled veteran of the fight for the Coast road, and the latter the dynamic leader of

INSTALL OFFICERS WITH GREAT POMP AND CEREMONY

Veteran Firemen Of Daly City Have Wonderful Get-Together Meeting

The Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City held their installation of officers, Friday evening, January 3.

After the usual routine of business, the following comrades were initiated to become members of the association: C. A. Bradtberg, Louis M. De Vincenzi and E. P. Fuhl. These men were fire fighters in Daly City some years past, and deserve the comradeship which the Veteran Firemen bestow. Meeting men who fought fires many years ago was a pleasant surprise and it was a cheery feeling to see the old faces and converse with them again.

The following comrades were installed by the Chaplain, Comrade H. H. Smith, with the assistance of the Uniform Rank: Comrade Edward Goldkuhl, president; Comrade P. Selmi, first vice president; Comrade E. Forsell, second vice president; Comrade Edward J. Ford, secretary; Comrade A. J. Grten, treasurer; Comrade H. H. Smith, chaplain; Comrade A. J. Bodien, marshal.

Comrade President Edward Goldkuhl was then presented with the gavel and called on all elective officers to say a few words, to which invitation they responded. Those who missed this meeting were missing something, for it was well attended. The Uniform Drill Team put on the work excellently. Chef J. Hesslein was re-elected as chef for the year 1936, which was appreciated by all present.

Comrade H. Anderson was asked to say a few words. He responded by singing a song. All applauded and enjoyed the song greatly. It was an Irish song as the Veterans all know, Comrade Anderson is always there with a song for the boys. He also mentioned the George Washington's Fete, to be held in San Francisco.

Comrade Wendell, who has missed many meetings, was also present and all were glad to see him again.

Comrade Past President H. Rickman was installed as chairman of the board of directors of the Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City. To all veteran firemen of the Daly

STUDENTS FROM DALY CITY ARE AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Ten Jefferson High Graduates Enrolled There For Further Studies

Nine graduates of Jefferson High School are registered at San Francisco State this semester, giving the local college its largest enrollment in history—1571 students.

A new law, recently passed by the State Legislature, gave all of the seven state colleges the right to grant Bachelor of arts degrees in academic subjects needed in the training of teachers.

Dr. Alexander C. Roberts, president of San Francisco State, has not changed the present setup at the college with respect to teacher training courses, but has reorganized the curricula and enriched all departments of instruction.

Majors and minors in fourteen fields will be offered next semester: Art, biological science, education, English, general science, journalism, music, physical education, physical science, psychology, romance languages, social service, social science and speech.

The list of students enrolled from Jefferson High School follows: Lois Bishir, Robert Cota, Harold Martin, Anita Money, Steve arodi, Marie Pfeifer, Ruth Smith, Esther Vireno and Muriel Wittmer.

EXTRA CLERKS IN TRAINING TO ISSUE PLATES

Longer Office Hours And More Help Will Add To Convenience

January 30 is the last day named in which to apply for new automobile license plates and pay the new vehicle license fee by the terms of the act passed by the legislature in July. After January 30 a penalty of double the license fee is imposed for the delay.

In order to take care of the volume of this business, the local branch of the division of registration is planning to extend its office hours each day from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m., except on Saturday, when the office will be open from 8 a. m. to 12 noon. This is a definite departure from the former nine to five bracket of hours and expressions of approval have been heard from dealers and owners on the convenience this will afford the public.

A corps of 175 clerks working in double shifts is being schooled in preparation for the public service. It will take longer to actually procure the plates and pay the fee than the time required in previous years, so the additional hours of service over those formerly in vogue have been deemed necessary.

"DARK ANGEL" IS GREAT LOVE STORY

Fredric March, Merle Oberon, Herbert Marshall Star In Goldwyn Drama

One of the most powerful and beautiful love stories ever filmed reaches the screen of the Daly City Theater, Sunday and Monday, January 12 and 13, when Samuel Goldwyn's production, "The Dark Angel," starring Fredric March, Merle Oberon and Herbert Marshall, begins a two day engagement.

Adapted from a play by Guy Bolton, the screen play of "The Dark Angel" was prepared by Lillian Hellman, author of the smash Broadway stage hit, "The Children's Hour," and Mordaunt Shairp, who will be remembered for his stage success, "The Green Bay Tree."

The story which is set in a quiet corner of lovely rural England follows the lives of a woman, Kitty Vane, (Merle Oberon) and two men, Alan Trent (Fredric March) and Geralld Shannon(HerbertMarshall). Since childhood, Kitty has adored Alan, and Gerald has adored Kitty. The war takes both men and in the trenches there comes to Alan the realization of his love for Kitty. Home on leave, he tells her of his love, but their plans to marry are shattered by a sudden call cancelling all leaves.

When Alan is reported killed, Kitty's life is broken. After the war, she becomes engaged to Gerald, but in the eleventh hour Fate steps in and the dream of her life is fulfilled in a gloriously happy ending.

"The Dark Angel" was directed by Sidney Franklin for released through United Artists.

On the same program, "The Case of the Lucky Legs," with Warren William and Patricia Ellis.

"Italy in Africa" will be shown Thursday and Friday, January 16 and 17.

ROYAL ARCH TO INSTALL OFFICERS FOR THIS YEAR

Ceremonies at Which South San Francisco Editor Will Become High Priest

San Mateo Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, will install 1936 officers, Monday evening of next week, at the San Mateo Masonic Temple, it has been announced.

Musical features of the evening will be selections by Theordore Strong, noted organist, at the console of the new Hammond electric organ. The new instrument, Strong explains, produces tones comparable to the mightiest pipe organ, although its mechanism is contained within a box hardly larger than a good sized packing case. The Hammond organ was introduced to northern California by the Olivet Memorial Park Associatio at Lawndale, which purchased the first electric organ in the area. The association is donating the use of the instrument for the installation ceremoies.

Daniel B. Richards, San Francisco attorney and grand lecturer of the Royal Arch order, will be installing officer. Ray Spangler, South San Francisco newspaper editor, will become high priest of the chapter, succeeding his father, Martin L. Spangler, who held the office in 1935.

Other officers: Edgar Dauphin, king; W. W. Walker, scribe; M. A. Elftman, treasurer; Charles W. King, secretary; Paul Ledwith, captain of the host; George W. Kertell, principol sojourner; William T. One Of Machines Turns Over, But No One Is Seriously Hurt

During the rain storms, about noon time, Wednesday of this week, the automobiles of Fred N. Wills of Alexander street and William Ottoboni of the Tanforan Flower Shop on Mission street, collided at Miriam street and Vista Grande avenue.

Ottoboni's touring car turned upside down and he sustained lacerations of the face, hands and legs, besides being considerably shaken up. His injuries, however, are not serious.

The car was damaged to a considerable extent and was towed from the scene of the accident.

Wilis was uninjured.

NEW YEAR RENEWS INTEREST IN FOALS

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Even after the witnessing of races becomes more or less of a grind the visits to thoroughbred nurseries are likely to have a greater appeal. Interest in the blood horse seems to be one of the things in life one never outgrows, although it may be manifested in other ways than going, day after day, to the nearest race track. One never tires of fanning bees, for example.

I ran across the other day note of mention that the Lord Derby of the eighteen forties, long after giving up racing for politics and literature, found his highest pleasure in a walk around accessible paddocks among the foals and yearlings. We read:

"Lord Derby's visits to Whitewall to talk horse with John Scott were among the things he would most have missed in a full and strenuous life."

John Scott was a famous conditioner of the day.

Another topic that comes up wherever owners gather is that of riding; there is nothing that adds so much to the enjoyment of the sport as intelligent handling of the colts and fillies nurtured with such care by their proud possessors. Some time ago, John Porter, a keen critic, was of the opinion so many butcher boys could be mostly what is required in the "get home first somehow" school of horsemanship.

Unfortunately not much improvement can be noted in the piloting of runners nowadays. There are a few capable riders. The other day a well liked colt was used up in the first four furlongs of a seven furlong race at a track not far from here and was beaten ten lengths. Such "butcher boy" riding is not rare, either, by highly paid jockeys. Judgment of pace is almost a lost art.

PRESIDENT GOING ON TO CERTAIN VICTORY

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Humorists are usually men of some acumen and in glancing over their comment on the current political scene more than a little enlightenment is gained. For the most part the rivals of President Roosevelt get short shrift. Frank Sullivan, in The New Yorker, is especially sharp in his view of things. One of the bits the jokesmith recalls is that former President Herbert Hoover said grass would grow in the streets if he were not re-elected.

Asking the rhetorical query:

"You do not believe in the existence of the Republican Party?" Sullivan answers:

"No Republican Party! Why, you are all wrong. There is a Republican Party, sure as there is an Odgen Mills. It is the afterglow of the sunset, empurpling the minarets of Palo Alto. It is rosemary from the tombs of Mark Hanna and Uncle Joe Cannon and Quay and Penrose and Tom Platt. It is E. F. Hutton, sounding the tocsin of the tycoons. It is love, and faith, and passion, and hope, and longing; at the moment, it is mostly longing."

As the Buffalo Times said, in commenting on the masterful speech of the chief executive on the state of the Union last week, President Roosevelt, swinging from an attack on autocracy abroad, described what he conceives as the danger of a revived autocracy at home—the autocracy of a "power seeking minority." As to breathing spells, so far as the "old order" is concerned, there'll be little relaxed respiration from now until November.

The President is a doughty fighter, as we have known all along, and that is why we should put him back in office for another four years to finish his great job. Here are ringing words:

"We have returned the control of the federal government to Washington.

"To be sure, in so doing, we have invited battle. WE HAVE EARNED THE HATRED OF ENTRENCHED GREED."

We should not forget the lamentable condition of the country a few years ago and the peaceful revolution that has been carried through by the federal administration. Something had to be done for the farmer and the President lost no time in substantial help to agriculture, which, as we all realize, is a basic industry. Agriculture and mining must prosper or we'll be in the doldrums permanently.

There has been some severe criticism of the policies of the administration, but for the most part fair critics have to admit President Roosevelt put his shoulder to the wheel, with his action in direct contrast to the attitude of his predeces sor. As is remarked by The Alaska Weekly, former President Hoover insisted the relief problem was not one of federal interest. As to that, editor Knight says:

"Those not on relief at that time did considerable suffering without Hoover appearing to be highly exercised. The trouble with Roosevelt has not been half so much his ideals as it has been the strange paths into which those ideals have lead him.

"Mr. Hoover is still the great engineer with a methodical fact-seeking mind whose closest acquaintanceship with the heart of the masses is to make some neat phrase about it."

NATIONAL FORESTS IN CALIFORNIA SET LOW FIRE RECORD

Many Cause Contribute To Elimination Of Damage Hazards

Although the forest fire season in southern California did not end until December 20, the best forest fire record since the national forests were established in this state was hung up this year by the Forest Service. Man-caused fires were reduced over preceding years and an alltime low of 20,600 acres was burned in the fire season of 1935, which was approached only in 1930 when 35,000 acres burned. The average annual acreage burned over in the national forests is 123,000. This record was made in spite of having 1700 fires in the national forests, which is over 100 more than in the average season.

Forest officials attribute their success in forest fire protection this year to two main causes—favorable weather conditions and the help of the CCC. Contributing to the record was more intensive training by forest officers of the crews assigned to initial attack on fires, the employment of patrolmen and checkers to aid in the prevention of fire on forests where travel was greatest, the use of radio at the forefront of going fires to facilitate the handling of men on the fire lines, and more effective law enforcement against forest incendiaries. Figures on damage to timber, grazing, watershed and recreational lands have not been finally computed, but it is expected that they will be small in proportion to the acreage burned.

Up to October 16, the acreage burned in the national forests was only a little over 17,000 acres. The low humidities and high winds occurring in southern California after that date altered the record considerably. The worst year on record is 1924, when 551,300 acres were burned over in the national forests of California. Prior to the establishment of the national forests in 1905 no accurate records were available as to the extent of large fires, but the reports of the first California Board of Forestry, 1886 to 1892, and the old files of newspapers, give accounts of very large fires which covered hundreds of thousands of acres annually. In 1872 a fire of 102,000 acres was reported in Siskiyou County, on the Klamath River, and one of 150,000 acres the same year on the Pit and McCloud Rivers that destroyed one and a half million board feet of timber.

When humane officers investigated the howling of dogs in a flat, at San Francisco, Calif., they found four famished mongrels standing guard over their dead mistress, Mrs. Agnes Wood, who had been dead for four days.

Old Br'er 'Coon Is a Wise One; Could Be Chosen National Animal

"If we were to adopt a national animal, just as we have adopted the eagle as the national bird, what better could we find than the raccoon?" asks Leon F. Whitney in the Journal of Mammalogy. Whitney favors the raccoon because it ranks as the most intelligent of mammals, and has proved its ability to survive where many other animals have succumbed.

Because the raccoon is nocturnal, it is one of the least understood of our animals, says Whitney. The common belief that the raccoon washes all of its food is discounted by him. "This observation has been made on raccoons in captivity and not in their natural state," he says.

Raccoons are popularly believed to hibernate all during the winter, but this is not always true, says Whitney. He calls the matter a relative one, for a cold snap which will drive a 'coon to his den in the fall may be not cold enough to keep him inside in the winter.

"In December, the raccoons will be found out on nights which may be as cold as 20 degrees, and when the temperature drops to 12 or 15 the raccoons will not be out," he says. "But temperatures which will make them go to their dens and go there during the early part of the fall, will not trouble them at all in the latter part of the fall. It seems to be an entirely relative matter, and the same condition applies throughout the winter. The warm nights all during the winter will bring the raccoons out, and the cold nights will keep them home."

Whitney has found that raccoons are not nearly as sensitive to noise as to vibration; that the sense of touch is developed far more in proportion than any of the other faculties. He gives the following explanation for this characteristic:

"Probably this development has come about through its tree climbing propensities. Living high up a tree where the wind roars and the thunder is louder, possibly a raccoon would need to be less sensitive to noise, and less wary for sound warnings. But he would need to be extremely sensitive to warnings through the sense of touch, and he is. If an enemy attempted to climb a tree in which he was living the facts must needs be transmitted to him; hence his development of this extraordinary power. Sometimes when hunting, my dogs have treed a raccoon in a tree too large to climb, and it seems impossible to induce him to look down at the flashlights so that his eyes may be seen and the hunter may know where to shoot. When an incident of this kind occurs, the hunters pound on the tree trunk with a rock. This will almost always arouse the animal's curiosity and he will look to see what is happening."

YOU CANNOT FOOL CAMERA; RECORDS ONE'S CHARACTER

Men are more self-conscious than women, decided G. Maillard Kesslere, New York artist-photographer, after reviewing his 20 years of making camera studies of famous faces. The camera, said Kesslere, reveals who is and who isn't at ease and also at what hour in the day a person shines brightest.

For example: Maurice Chevalier, he believes, is at his peak before dinner. Tallulah Bankhead, the actress, and Jack Dempsey are their true selves in the afternoon. The full bloom of Rudy Vallee's personality never is glimpsed until 4 a. m.

Kings, said Kesslere, are usually "early birds." Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Warden Lawes of Sing Sing prison, and the prince of Wales also are classified as "morning glories."

Men—even much photographed Irving Berlin and Giovanni Martinelli of the Metropolitan opera—are apt to don a stony smile for the camera. But most women like being photographed, said Kesslere. They can relax more easily, he reasoned, because they are more familiar with their own outward appearance. "They know themselves much better—every smile, every little wink. Women look in mirrors until they can almost close their eyes and see themselves," Kesslere declared.

He believes that eyes and mouths are unfaltering records of character. "To a person of discernment," he said, "they never lie."

Torture of Affectation

Affectation has been said to ruin a face quicker than the smallpox. Its effect on the character is even worse. "You will generally suffer," declares Arthur Helps, "for wishing to appear other than you are, whether it be richer or greater or more learned. The mask soon becomes an instrument of torture."

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

CONGRATULATIONS TO COAST SIDE!

The year 1936 will indeed be a happy one for the coast side of San Mateo County, and with its happiness and assured prosperity, by reason of the long fight for an Ocean Shore Highway all of San Mateo County also has reason to rejoice.

It was on the coast side of this county that the first explorers into what is now this county made their initial advent. It was from the coast side of San Mateo County that San Francisco Bay was first sighted by others than the Indians.

It was on the coast side that a railroad was built many years ago and then suddenly vanished, and all that the settlers and visitors to the coast side had for transportation facilities, aside from private cars, was a bus line that, after leaving the flat, had to wind its way in a winding ascent up Pedro Mountain and then along a similar winding road down to the flat on the other side of the mountain.

The coast side is destined to become an important part of San Mateo County. With its excellent ocean beaches, its wonderful scenic beauty, its large farms and ranches, its splendid home sites and its pioneer stock of settlers, this is inevitable.

The cosat side can well say: "First to be discovered—Last to be recognized." But now that this district has at last come into its own we may expect this patient and long suffering community to speed developments, long retarded.

REDUCTION IN RATES FOR LONG DISTANCE CALLS

Telephone Company Has Applied To Railroad Commission For Changes In Service.

New long distance rate schedule adjustments incorporating new service features and substantial rate reductions, within California, have been proposed by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company in an application filed with the California Railroad Commission.

"In seeking authority to readjust our interexchange rates," said M. R. Sullivan, vice president and general manager, "we are carrying out our established policy of rendering the greatest amount of service at the least possible cost to our patrons. In accordance with this policy, we are offering many new and advantageous features in our toll service. Our proposal will make the telephone more useful to more people in more ways."

The new features and rate changes, for which the company asks approval of the commission are as follows:

New Schedule—Outstanding Rate Reductions

1—Introduction of a new uniform schedule of rates for day and night long distance service. Starting at 72 miles for station-to-station calls, the reductions progressively increase; for example, at 200 miles the reductions approximate 20 per cent, whereas on longer hauls rates are reduced as much as 40 per cent.

Under 72 miles the rates remain the same as at present with the exception, in a relatively few cases, where there is a nominal adjustment upwards which results from the application of the new uniform schedule. These adjustments, however, are minor in character, being only five cents above the present initial day rate for station-to-station calls.

"In the relatively few instances where adjustments are nominally upward, these should be weighed in the light of the many outstanding reductions which will obtain in every community we serve," explained Mr. Sullivan. "Our new Sunday and night discount rates should appeal particularly to every community as these new services will be of distinct benefit to all of our patrons."

New Night Discount Rates At 7 P. M.

2—Introduction of a new night station-to-station rate, beginning at 7:00 p. m. and continuing until 4:30 a. m. This would take the place of the present evening rate beginning at 8:30 p. m. and the present night rate which begins at midnight and ends at 4:30 a. m.

New Week-End Discount Rates

3—Introduction of a week-end discount rate, beginning at 7:00 p. m. each Saturday and continuing through all day Sunday to 4:30 a. m. Monday. This would make the proposed new night station-to-station rates applicable to all-day Sunday station-to-station calls.

These discount rates are pronounced reductions—at 50 miles the reduction approximates 12 per cent below the day station-to-station rate and the reductions progressively increase; for example, at 150 miles the reduction is 50 per cent and on long-haul rates the reduction approximates 65 per cent.

New Person-to-Person Discounts

4—Introduction of discount person-to-person rates applying from 7:00 p. m. to 4:30 a. m., and also during the week-end discount period from 7:00 p. m. Saturday to 4:30 a. m. Monday. Heretofore, person-to-person rates have been the same for all hours.

These discount person-to-person rates are also pronounced reductions. At 200 miles the reduction is about 45 per cent and on the longer hauls the reduction is as much as 60 per cent.

New Reduced Appointment and Messenger Rates

5—The rate classifications for Appointment and Messenger calls are eliminated. Such messages will be accepted at the new person-to-person rates. This means a reduction for these classes of services amounting to at least 15 per cent in addition to all other reductions proposed.

In addition to the reductions in long distance rates, the following modifications in certain exchange rates and practices in the public interest have also been proposed to the Railroad Commission:

1—Reduction in service connection charge from $3.50 to $3.00 applicable to new installations for residence service.

2—Reduction in charge for moving and changing telephones from $3.50 to $1.50.

3—Standardization of rates for business wall extension sets—a reduction of 25 per cent for this service in all exchanges where differential does not now exist.

4—Elimination of differential in rates for private branch exchange stations equipped with dials.

5—Other miscellaneous changes inclusive of reduction in certain mileage rates and reductions in monthly charges for telephone cords where furnished in excess of standard lengths.

Cold Affects Battery

Cold weather seriously affects the efficiency of the storage battery.

Engineers report that this reduced efficiency amounts to approximately 50 per cent at a temperature of 10 degrees as compared with the condition of the battery at a temperature of 80 degrees.

DECLARE EXTRA DIVIDEND WITH REGULAR ONE

Both Due And Payable On Last Of Month As Of January 15

Directors of Transamerica Corporation today declared an extra dividend of 10 cents a share in addition to the regular semi-annual dividend of 15 cents ashare. Both the extra and the regular dividend are payable January 31 to stockholders of record January 15.

John M. Grant, president, announced that, subject to audit, consolidated net profit of Transamerica Corporation, consolidated companies, and all controlled subsidiaries, after provision for taxes and minority interests, will approximate $20,000,000 for 1935, or about 86 cents a share on 23,181,568 shares of capital stock outstanding. This compares with $11,450,587 earned in the previous year, or 48 cents a share on the 23,-621,897 shares outstanding at December 31, 1934.

Grant stated that the operations of Transamerica Corporation for the year 1935 resulted in an enhancement of some $40,000,000, before dividend disbusements of $6,484,000.

In addition to the net profit of $20,000,0000, the market value of securities in portfolio shows an increase over carrying value of over $3,150,000 at December 31, 1935, compared with a depreciation of $8,-378,000 at December 31, 1934, a betterment of more than $11,500,000 in 1935.

the corporation's portfolio at the end

Due largely to the recapture of reserves no longer required, as well as to substantial recoveries, paid-in surplus and general reserves showed an increase for the year, subject to any adjustments after audit, of $8,600,-000 net after all charges, including the charge to surplus resulting from the retirement of capital stock to treasury.

The president reported that the corporation's notes and accounts payable have been reduced from $21,-154,000 on December 31,1931, shortly before the Giannini management returned to control, to less than $250,-000 in miscellaneous accounts, accrued taxes and expenses. A year ago notes and accounts payable totaled $10,529,000.

During 1935 Transamerica Corporation acquired and retired to treasury 440,329 shares of its capitai stock, bringing the total in treasury to 1,665,916 shares. At a special stockholders meeting to be held in Wilmington, Delaware, on March 26 next, legal steps will be taken to cancel all the above mentioned stock now in the treasury, reducing the amount of capital stock of the corporation to the 23,181,568 shares in the hands of the public.

During the year 1935 Transamerica's banks in California, Oregon, and Nevada established records in total deposits and total resources, while Occidental Life Insurance Company and Pacific National Fire Insurance Company attained their all time highs in business written. The earnings of Bank of America N. T. & S. A. for the year 1935 were approximately 32 per cent on its capital stock outstanding and 16 per cent on its total capital invested.

RELIGION IN THE NEWS

(By Rev. Miles Dawson)

The presence of a certain book in my library testifies that I am vitally interested in real science. But from time to time there arise false scientists who undertake to destroy all reason and fact and truth. When I read of such a one, I become more and more convinced that what we need today is nothing more or less than to return to the simple lives of faith that our fathers knew. We have become so awfully smart, that we are able now to cast aside all proof and fact, and coin whatever notion comes to an idle mind. If I were easily worried, I would be terribly upset now, for the woman I had always supposed to be my mother might be my grandmother or some far- distant relative. At least Dr. David Causey, professor of biology at the University of Arkansas, tried to explain some such ridiculous contention in speaking to the American Association for the Advancement of Science in St. Louis, January 1. Speaking of the Dionne quintuplets, he said, in part, "they had no immediate sire. Even Mrs. Dionne cannot claim to be their mother. They are her grandchildren, perhaps several generations removed. Their immediate ancestor is a single individual who never enjoyed an independent existence, but was a unicellular organism like a protozoan." Another point on which he enlarged, was that man was deteriorating in biological and social significance, and that woman would soon be able to get along without him. Nonsense like this has helped to build a nervous and doubting generation of youth who do not believe anything and who will not listen to the simple things of God and the Church. Our need, I say, is a return to the "Faith of our Fathers," and to the faith which is the essence of the 11th chapter of Hebrews.

AUTO LICENSE RENEWAL TIME IS NEAR AT HAND

Deadline Has Been Set For Last Day Of Present Month

With the 1936 period for renewal of automobile registration ending at midnight January 30, car owners are crowding to plate issuing offices and providing a heavy early rush of applications, according to reports from various sections of the state.

The January 30 deadline is of special importance to car owners because those who fail to apply before expiration of the time limit will be obliged to pay double the amount of the new license fee based on car valuation. The new fee, at the rate of $1.75 per $100, is in addition to the regular $3 registration fee.

Another note of caution which has been sounded is against the mistake of assuming that car owners can wait until the last day of January before applying. This month has thirty-one days, it is emphasized, while the registration period expires and the 100 per cent penalty becomes effective at midnight on January 30.

The new black on orange license plates for 1936 are being issued by the Department of Motor Vehicles at offices in principal cities and also at offices of the California Highway Patrol. Mail applications are received by the department office in Sacramento. The California State Automobile Association is conducting a plate issuance service for members at each of its offices in thirty-three cities of northern and central California.

Post card notices mailed by the department, telling the amount of new license fee should be presented when applying for plates, together with the 1935 certificate of registration stamped to show clearance of personal property tax payment.

SUNDAY SERVICES AT CALVARY CHURCH

During this week the Calvary Baptist Church, 5724 Mission street, has been enjoying the ministrry of the pastor of the San Francisco First Baptist Church, Rev. D. M. Dawson. Every night this week this pastor has been speaking, and large audiences have been filling the church auditorium. The speaker is the father of the pastor of the Calvary Church, and has often exchanged pulpits with him.

The older Rev. Dawson was a layman for many years, holding a union card in San Francisco for fifteen years, during which time he was shop manager of the Gille Showprint Company. He later left this work to enter the ministry, and has maintained a very successful ministry throughout California. He will speak Sunday morning at the Calvary Church, and the junior Dawson will speak at 7:45 in the evening.

CHAMPIONSHIP OF LEAGUE WON BY DALY CITY

Brilliant Pitching Of Left Hander Is High Light Of Victory—Maloney Shines With The Willow—Carrasco and Palmini Fielding Stars.

Well, folks, the boys have done it again! Meaning, of course, bringing to our beloved city the second baseball championship within a season of activity. Good, you say, well I'll go one better and state it is marvelous.

"Lefty" Feiber, star left hander of the local club, was delegated the mound duty by Manager Martin, and what a whale of a game this lad twirled. Sending thirteen batters down by the strike out route, allowing only four scattered hits and applying a nice coat of white wash to the league runners up is sure a commendable performance for any youngster. What say!

As usual, the local lads set the fireworks off with a bang at the very start. De Felippo slammed one at Medigani, the opposing pitcher, which was too hot to handle, but Squeri, hot corner guardian for the fire laddies, had the ball caromed right into his mitt to retire the runner at first in easy fashion. Carrasco lined one along the first base line for two bases. Vasquez popped one high in the air behind second base, which Killilea bungled, giving the runner a life on an error. Palmini slammed a single to center field, which sent Carrasco across the plate with the first tally. Petrocchi, after working the pitcher overtime with foul balls, went down fanning the wind. On the next play a double steal was executed, putting Vasquez over with the second tally and Palmini on second. Maloney singled sharply to right field, sending Palmini over with the third tally. Musante singled to right, sending Maloney to third. Volkman lined one to center field, scoring Maloney with tally number four. Feiber singled to left, sending Musante across the plate with the fifth run of the inning. De Felippo, at bat for the second time in this inning, forced Feiber at second, retiring the home club. Five big runs, six well timed hits, coupled with one miscue, and the ball game was "in the bag."

Well, the boys brought home the bacon. And, as many of our readers have been unable to attend these games, the writer will cite a few facts and figures which go to make up any winning combination. In the first place, perfect understanding must exist betwee members of the club, for, when you develop the spirit of understanding, you then cultivate teamwork.

Johnny De Felippo, the little fellow who is the guardian of the center field territory and who is the leadoff man in the batting lineup, has been at bat 38 times, connected for nine singles and scored four runs. Batting for 238 while in a batting slump, and fielding for a perfect score of 1000, is not a very bad record; eh, what?

Captain "Tudo" Carrasco, second baseman, has been at bat 31 times, connected for fifteen base hits, and scored ten runs. Batting for 484 and a fielding average of 915—you said it, that's not bad.

Johnnie Vasquez, shortstop of the local team, has faced the pitchers 31 times, connected for eleven hits, and scored eleven runs. Batting for 355 and fielding for 909, is it any wonder that the Cincinatti scout wants his name on the dotted line.

Lou Palmini, the hot corner lad, has stepped up to the plate 34 times, connected with the horsehide for eleven base hits, scored twelve runs for a batting average of 323 and has fielded for 900.

"Lola" Petrocchi, a home town boy who guards the right field territory, fills in any position in the infield, and at a moment's notice can take the mound and pitch a real good game, has been at bat 34 times, connected for nine base hits, which included three home runs, a triple and a double. This lad has scored 13 runs and batting 16 more across the plate, for an average of 265, while he fields for 1000. This boy has been signed by the Cincinatti "Reds."

Harry Maloney, who happens to be poison to all left field hitters, and who happens to be one of the best fly hawks in the semi-pro ranks, has clipped the pill at the rate of 382 and fielded for an even 1000. Not bad for "Papa" Maloney.

"Speck" Musante, another lad who has become the property of the Cincinatti "Reds," and who covers first base for the local club, is batting for 259 and fielding for 927.

"Ray" Volkman, the pitcher's "standby," the fellow that knows what to call for at the right time, is not going bad at all. Batting for 270 and fielding for 1000, this fellow is worth his weight in gold to any ball club.

Creighton Davies, star pitching ace and a home town product, is going great guns, and much may be expected of this lad when he dons the Cincinnatti "Red" uniform. This youngster has been fanning anywhere from 14 to 19 batters per game, while allowing one to five hits to the opposition. Young Davies cannot only pitch, but is a whale of a batter, as can be seen in his average of 428.

"Lefty" Feiber, star left hander, has also twirled a swell brand of baseball. The game of last Sunday, when he white washed the league runners up, was just a sample. This boy has been in a batting slump, which accounts for his 200 average.

Sammy Hawley, the 48 year old youngster, has been called upon to fill the shoes of an injured player on two occasions, and has he come through? Well, glance at these figures. Eight times at bat and four hits for an average of 500, while his fielding average is only 1000.

Last, but not least, "Jeff" Martin, the manager of the home club. This lad entered his club in the Peninsula League, the Oakland Baseball Tournament, for the championship of the State of California, and the San Francisco Recreation AA league the past season. Winning the Peninsula League and Recreatio Double A League championships has been a very commendable record set up by the Daly City Tanforan nine under his able and efficient guidance and leadership.

Whe you folks realize that four of the youngsters on this team have been signed by the Cincinatti basecuit, namely Davies, Petrocchi, Muball club of the National League cirsante and Vasquez, and that the Chicago "White Sox" of the American League circuit has recalled Clarence "Lefty" Feiber, then you will support me in my conviction that "Jeff" konws his baseball players.

And to top this club's value with a nice coat of icing, let me state that a certain "Big" league scout has informed me, that the only requirement that holds him back from signing Carrasco, Maloney, Palmini and Volkman is the age limit. He further states that Ray Volkman, is one of the best catches in the semi-pro ranks, and the greatest asset that any young pitcher can be fortunate in having as a battery mate.

The members of the Daly City Tanforan club extend to all their supporters their sincere appreciation for the moral support that has been shown at the many games, and wish each and every fan a very happy and prosperous New Year.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, January 12, on the subject "Sacrament."

The Golden Text will be: "In the world ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world" (John 16: 33). Bible selections will include the following passage from I Cor. 11:23-26: "For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus the same night in which he was betrayed took bread: And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me. After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, " Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "If all who ever partook of the sacrament had really commemorated the sufferings of Jesus and drunk of his cup, they would have revolutionized the world" (p. 34).

Russian Children Are to Build a Railway Tunnel

A railway tunnel, 3,000 feet of line, and a station complete in every detail are to be built in their spare time by 500 children in the Tiflis Park of Culture and Rest at Moscow.

These projects will be an extension of the famous Children's Railway built in the park by the children themselves. It is run entirely by children and has two stations and 1,200 feet of track. It was opened three months ago, and since then 65,000 passengers have ridden in its tiny train, driven by a child. The work of building the railway was supervised by engineers of the Transcaucasian railway.—Montreal Herald.

Engineers Will Move River to Create an Airdrome Site

To move a river so that an aerodrome can be built sounds a fantastic task—yet that is what engineers are about to do near Nice. The mouth of the Var, a large river there, is to be completely diverted so that an aerodrome can be built where its waters have flowed out to the sea for countless centuries.

For some years the mouth has been gradually silting up, and a delta has been forming under the surface of the water. Now it is proposed to move the river bed 200 yards to the west, so that the delta becomes dry land. On this will be built an important aerodrome.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

SYNOPSIS

As Alan Garth, prospector, is preparing to leave for his mining claim in the Far North, a plane lands at the airways emergency station. In it are Burton Ramill, millionaire mining magnate; his daughter, Lilith; and Vivian Huxby, pilot and mining engineer. Believing him to be only an ignorant prospector, the men offer to make an air trip to Garth's claim, although they refer to his samples of platinum-bearing ore as nearly "worthless." Lilith Ramill, product of the jazz age, plainly shows contempt for Garth. Through Garth's guidance the plane soon reaches the claim site. Huxby and Ramill, after making several tests, assure Garth his claim is nearly valueless, but to "encourage" young prospectors they are willing to take a chance in investing a small amount. Sensing treachery ahead, Garth secretly removes a part from the motor of the plane. Huxby and Lilith taunt Garth, but their tone soon changes when they try to start the plane. Returning to shore they try to force Garth to give up the missing part. Garth manages to set the monoplane adrift and the current carries it over the falls. He points out that he is their only hope in guiding them out of the wilderness. Garth begins the work of preparing for the long journey. He insists that the others help. Ramill and his daughter must be hardened for the hardships ahead in their trek to the outpost on the Mackenzie. Garth experiences difficulties in getting his companions into line. An experience with a bear helps. Returning from a long sleep in the woods, Garth finds the party has stolen the tea and sugar he has been saving for emergencies. He makes no objection, simply pointing out that he is accustomed to a strict meat diet, and that they are hurting only themselves. The work of getting ready for the trip continues. Huxby refuses to help, and works on the mining claim.

No man of the engineer's coldly calculating character would stop at anything, when the stakes of the game meant a placer worth a million or more. Mother Nature could now be counted on to keep the spoiled heiress in line. But the Wild would only sharpen and intensify the engineer's craft and avarice.

After eating his fill, Garth took to Huxby's bed, beside the smudge-fire. He wakened to find that the sun had taken its northern dip and was just slanting up again above the mountain crests. It had been under much longer than in June. The summer was getting well along.

Huxby had stayed on watch to keep the fire going. He met Garth's off-hand good morning with a show of civility. His cool reasoning had brought him to the realization that nothing was to be gained by upstaging Garth.

When Miss Ramill left the leanto, Garth stooped in under the low roof and began to rub her father's knees and hips. The millionaire groaned that he had been stricken with a terrible attack of lumbago and rheumatism. It was impossible for him to move.

Heedless of the plaints, Garth rolled the complainer out beside the cold baked leg of moose. The "sick" man ate more than either his daughter or Garth. Afterwards, insistent urging and the promise of an easy work-out persuaded him to get on his feet. They wandered around through the woods, with frequent pauses in the glades.

When, several hours later, they returned to camp Miss Ramill had completed one moccasin and was doggedly stitching at its mate. Huxby came down from the trough with the gold pan. Garth melted the last of the moose fat in it and fried a heaping mess of mushrooms. For salad, he shook a quantity of pleasantly acid sorrel from the bottom of his pail. With berries for dessert, the meal became a banquet. While it lasted there was a general glow of good feeling. Even Huxby spoke pleasantly to Garth.

As before, Garth turned in at the same time as Mr. Ramill. He wakened to find the first pair of moccasins finished. The girl had met his terms.

He gave Huxby the moss bed, and started to collect flattish stones as heavy as he could toss. When he had pitched a dozen or so upon the cache platform, he strung the smoked slices of meat on rawhide thongs. Raking aside the smudge-fire, he stood on the rack and tied all the meat close up under the cache platform.

He then climbed upon the platform and piled the stones on the tie-thongs where they came around the poles. That would keep wolverines or other pilferers from gnawing the rawhide to let the meat fall. No fourfooted creature could now get at the meat on the under side of the platform, and even ravens would have difficulty stealing much of it. To complete the job, Garth pulled off the cross poles of the smoke rack.

For breakfast, the party finished the baked leg of moose. As Garth had foreseen, his three city camp mates had developed camp appetites. Better still, they were less irritable. Their craving for drink and tobacco had begun to lessen.

At timberline Huxby went up the trough with the gold pan. Garth so hard, nor did he have to stop so often to rest. The first climb had done more than strengthen his wind and flabby muscles. It had burned up the autotoxins in his system as well as sweat off many pounds of fat.

He managed to climb all the way to the lower end of the glacier. It took him less time than his part-way climb and he was far less exhausted. While he rested in a sunny nook on the rocky side of the lateral moraine, his daughter went down in front of the glacier with Garth. They came to the channel where the milky stream gushed out of a tunnel cave in the blue-white ice.

Garth pointed to a shelf of rock on the near side of the stream. He walked into the cave along the smoothly polished ledge. Lilith Ramill shuddered and glanced up fearfully at the steep over-hanging ice face that seemed about to crash down. Yet after a moment's hesitation, she followed Garth into the chilly blue shadow of the cave.

Several yards from the entrance Garth stopped before a narrow side hole that opened above a waist-high uprise in the bedrock. He reached in and picked up a bundled white skin. Out in the sun he opened the skin and showed a piece of frozen meat.

"How's that for cold storage?" he said. "Killed a young mountain sheep on my way out, last month. Thought I'd test the glacier. Looks as if it's a safe meat house. No chance of spoiling, and not even a wolf has ventured inside."

Miss Ramill said nothing. She saw no reason to consider the cave of the slightest interest. There was, however, the meat. She suggested that if it was not spoiled, it would make a change from the moose meat. This proved true. Down at camp the young mutton was first thawed in cold water, then stewed in the gold pan.

The descent had been made by Ramill without aid. There was no need to support, much less back-pack him. He had really begun to get a start in training. To Garth this was all the more reason for pushing the millionaire so much the harder.

In the week that followed, he alternated more climbs with trips around into the muskeg swamps. He led his sweating, swearing charge over nigger-head grass, where the heavy-bodied city man had to jump nimbly from one big tussock to another or take a tumble.

Miss Ramill tagged along on these grueling hikes. She also made another climb up the gulch. Garth cached in the cave the hundred pounds of smoked moose meat he had brought up on his pack-board. He then led on up the glacier, halfway from its foot to the top of the pass. That gave the three climbers some real ice work. Coming back, Garth knocked three brace of fool hens from spruce limbs with a stick.

The half dozen grouse made a pleasant change. But even with a pail of salmon berries for dessert they proved a scant meal for the four meat-eaters. The last leg of moose had already been baked and eaten, the tongues broiled, and the second muffle stewed. The remainder of the smoked meat would not last long. So far, Garth had not interfered with Huxby's all-day panning out of the platinum alloy. He had not even asked to look at the take of precious metal. Food was a different matter. Instead of shooting another moose, he called upon Huxby to join in a caribou hunt.

A band of the big animals had drifted along the tundra terrace over towards the glacier. Garth counted fifteen. He waited until the band came within seventy-five yards. He then let drive, shooting rapidly yet with careful aim. One after another dropped, each with a bullet through the head. The stupid beasts stared in the direction of the sharp reports. But they could see nothing. The sixth went down before the nine survivors wheeled and clattered off in panic-stricken flight.

The flaying was well under way when Huxby and Miss Ramill came hastening aslant the tundra ahead of Mr. Ramill. The girl eyed the clean delicious-looking white fat on the first flayed body. "That looks good, Alan! Vivian, you can go back to your mining. Dad and I will help here."

Her father called out a panting suggestion for Huxby to wait and carry down a load of meat.

"No need," Garth said. "Don't stop, Huxby. Most of this venison is going on ice. None will be allowed to spoil."

The engineer did not linger. He had looked none too well pleased over the girl's familiar use of Garth's first name. Along with his displeasure about this, there could be no doubt of his eagerness to get back to the platinum panning. Each successive day he had shown himself still keener to continue the sampling of the placer.

When Garth finished the flaying of the caribou, he started to dress out the bodies. Greatly to his astonishment, at the cutting up of the second caribou, she took the belt-ax and began to help. Mother Nature had cracked the polished shell of artificiality in which cased. The girl's few days in the Wild had awakened primitive instincts ground deep into the nature of woman during the remote past of mankind. Down through countless ages her prehistoric ancestresses had learned the bitter lesson that, in the Wild, days of plenty are certain to be followed by days of famine. The cave man hunted the meat; the cave woman hoarded what she could of it against the time of want. Otherwise her children starved.

So, upon reflection, Garth's amazement passed. He had managed to cover it, even at the first, when Lilith Ramill took the belt-ax in her slender hand and severed the neck bone of the caribou with a single blow.

Her father was the one who stared. He sat watching the girl's quick, eager wielding of the hand-ax, his mouth slack, almost agape. Garth could only surmise how she had always been coddled and pampered. Her father knew it. He knew how, since her childhood, she had been wrapped about with silken luxury, waited upon by attentive servants, petted and spoiled.

The millionaire had been born on a farm. He could recall seeing his mother help butcher sheep and hogs. But she was a farmer's wife. Lilith would not have known how to prepare a spring chicken for the pan. And now she was cutting up caribou.

Aside from an occasional word of direction, Garth said nothing. When he finished dressing out the fifth carcass, he handed his knife to his eager helper, packed a load of meat, and carried it to the ice cave.

Down in the gulch bottom he chose a pothole stone that would hold perhaps three quarts. In the bowl he coiled a wick of twisted dry caribou moss, piled in caribou fat, and lighted the wick. When the fat melted, the wick burned with a strong steady flame. Caribou ribs furnished a grating on which to broil steaks. The fat meat was deliciously tender, its flavor between venison and beef.

When even Mr. Ramill could eat no more, Garth carried the stone lamp into the ice cave. Upon his return, he had Mr. Ramill and Lilith look close at the caribou skins.

"You see they are hair, not fur. But every hair is hollow. Nothing is warmer than a caribou parka. In fact, the winter coat is too warm to be worn. That is why I killed six now, instead of one. You have never wintered in the North."

Mr. Ramill tensed as if prodded. "Wintered? You can't mean to infer you expect to stay on here. We have your promise to take us out."

Garth turned to meet the intent gaze of the girl's blue eyes. They looked as cold as the blue ice of the glacier tunnel. None the less, they had greatly changed since he had first seen them, over on the Mackenzie. They no longer showed a trace of their former cynical tiredness. The girl might be as hard as ever, but she was no longer bored or ennuied. For another thing, she had begun to lose her excessive thinness.

He answered her father: "You have my promise—more's the pity. A winter a la Eskimo would be a wonderful experience for Miss Ramill. However, she will of course prefer to go back to jazz and cocktails, to paint, powder and lipstick."

She flared: "And rid of you!"

"To be sure. That above all else," he agreed. "So how could I deprive you of that pleasure, or fail to give your father and your fiance another chance to bilk me out of my placer claim? I agreed to get you back to the Mackenzie. When we reach the old post, we part company. You and Huxby will then be free to go as far as you can."

"But in that case— No, you can't make me swallow it. I know you're not such a fool as to risk losing that placer."

"What d'you take me for? Your brand of gold-digger? Gad, that's the nubbin of it all. It's the reason why men like you and Huxby lose out. You worship the golden calf. Yet what value is there to riches other than what you get from them? Can you think of a more enjoyable game than playing draw poker, with our lives in the jackpot, and Fortune dealing us the cards of chance?"

"What's the catch?" inquired Miss Ramill, with a sudden upwelling of her sophisticated cynicism. "'Lives in the jackpot'—that means nothing. It's your placer that's in the pot. What stakes do you consider we have in to balance it?"

"That would be telling," he teased. "You'll know if I win. If I lose, it will not matter to any of you what you've risked. The showdown may come sooner than I expected. Your father is already in fairly good shape. We'll start the trip out as soon as these caribou skins have been tanned."

CHAPTER VI

Hell in the Muskegs.

Garth sat beside the camp fire, sewing new moccasins for himself. Nearby, the millionaire dealer in mines and his fastidious daughter scraped the raw sides of the six caribou skins and rubbed them with the tanning mixture of fat, liver and brains. Garth had told them they could either tan the skins, or wait for him to do it. Until the tanning had been finish, the trip out would not begin.

Mr. Ramill was so keen to start back for civilization that he went at the disagreeable task with energy and determination. Lilith not only worked as vigorously as her father, she showed a real interest in the tanning.

Huxby took no part in this preparation of the skins. When he came down to the camp from the platinum placer, the sight of his fiancee's doing such squaw work struck him speechless. He stared in blank amazement. When at last he found his voice, he started to threaten Garth:

"You've gone a bit too far, you roughneck. Stand up, or I'll kick you up. I am going to—"

The girl broke in, with cool scorn: "Tune off, old dear. You're set on static. It's not interference we want. Dad and I are giving this performance under our own direction. You see, it's a bargain. Alan agrees to start our trip out just as soon as these skins are all tanned."

The mining engineer drew back. "So soon as that? My dear girl, if he's going to rush us off, I don't see how I can spare any time here in camp. I haven't yet sampled all the area of the placer."

Manure Most Important in Aiding Plant Growth

The chemist's analysis of a short ton—2,000 pounds—of well rotted barnyard manure reveals that it is made up of 1,500 pounds of water and 500 pounds of dry matter. This 500 pounds of dry matter contains approximately ten pounds of nitrogen, five of phosphoric acid, 13 of potash, eight of lime and five of sulphur—a total of 41 pounds of chemicals—plus 459 pounds of organic matter, or "humus." In addition, asserts an authority in the New York Times, it contains a supply of certain bacteria and other microscopic organisms which are essential in effecting changes in the soil—the "breaking down" of chemical compounds existing in the soil into simpler and more soluble forms.

In other words, manure is so valuable in gardening because it provides, combined in this one substance, three distinct soil aids: first, small amounts of the main plant food elements (nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash) and also of lime (not a food element but a "digestion accelerator" in the plant's diet); second, a supply of humus or organic matter which helps to change any uncongenial, unresponsive soil into moisture-holding, friable, productive loam; and, thirdly, an active, thriving population of bacteria beneficial to plant feeding and plant growth.

Pressed Wood

Pressed wood, especially the tempered grade, has almost unlimited uses in home improvement and decoration. One woman used it effectively to replace the bottom of a piano bench that had fallen out long ago; and now the music is no longer scattered in window sills and on chairs. This same material was used to cover the unsightly top of a general utility table. Made entirely of wood and being warp-proof and moisture-resistant, pressed wood is sturdy; it yields easily to the saw and does not chip or crack under pressure of nails or screws.

WITH REGRETS

The eyes of many Colma residents were cast somewhat reluctantly towards the tearing down of the old Jefferson Grammar School. The historic old building, which has held its place in the hearts of Colma school children for a period of nearly half a century, has at last surrendered that place to the new and beautiful structure which has risen beside it.

Although the townspeople have worked and hoped for this step of progress, it is not without a feeling of sadness that we watch the old building disappear into the pages of Colma's history.

SMOLDERING ASHES CAUSE FIRE ALARM

On Wednesday evening of this week, the Daly City Fire Department answered an alarm at the home of Ernest Foss, 326 Hillside boulevard.

A box, under the stove, containing smoldering ashes, was found to be the cause of the disturbance.

Mr. Foss, before retiring, had cleaned out the stove, putting the ashes in the wooden container not realizing that the hot cinders would burn their way through. What might have been a disastrous fire was checked in the "nick of time."

For Those Front End Rattles

One of the commonest explanations of annoying rattles at the front of the car is a combination of worn king pins and bushings. One started —as a result of wear—it tends to grow steadily worse.

Lubrication fails as a remedy because the wear is such that the lubricant quickly is lost. New pins and bushings not only will eliminate the noise but also will make for much more effective steering.

Mrs. R. Fellman, Sr. of Annie street, has been confined to her home the past week suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Cypress Circle U. A. O. D. No. 14 held its regular meeting, Wednesday evening of this week, at Colombo Hall. Following the business session, a social was held and refreshments consisting of delicious coffee and doughnuts were served.

Teachers of the Jefferson Grammar School were busy, Tuesday afternoon of this week, getting their classrooms in the new building in readiness for classes which will begin Monday of next week.

SERA ORCHESTRA IS NOW READY TO GIVE CONCERTS

Daly City Musicians Are Prominent In Management Of New Organization

Organization of the musical program of the WPA to provide work for professional musicians in San Mateo County has been completed. Cilbert L. Green, former director of the SERA orchestra, has been appointed supervisor of music for the county and director of the orchestra. Edgar A. Vinal will be assistant director under Green.

Rehearsals are now under way and the orchestra will be ready for engagements after the fifteenth of this month. Concerts will be given at the various hospitals and schools of the county, and it is expected that public concerts, sponsored by the various Chambers of Comerce, or other civic organizations, will be given in every community of San Mateo County.

Headquarters have been established at 1300 Howard avenue., Burlingame, where requests for concerts may be addressed. Rehearsals are being held at the Burlingame Fire Hall auditorium.

Under the WPA organization, the orchestra will be a much more closely knit organization than the former SERA band, and some splendid concerts are expected. This is due to the hearty co-operation of Miss Harle Jervis, state director of music for WPA, and Ernest Bacon, supervisor and director of music for the County of San Francisco. At the present time there are 21 persons employed on the project.

Our Juniors, in turn, deserve a lot of credit for the varied talents they displayed in entertaining the Auxiliary and Post members.

A meeting of the Junior Girls Corp will be held Friday afternoon, January 10, in Eagles Hall.

The San Mateo-Santa Clara Counties Council, of which we are an integral part, will hold open and joint installation of their 1936 officers, Saturday evening, January 11, at the De Anzo Hotel, San Jose. The ceremony will be preceded by a banquet and followed by dancing.

BAYSHORE DOG TRACK PLEDGES SUM TO CHARITY

Supervisor Al Witt Brings Good News To Court House Of Funds For Worthy Cause.

That little youngsters, children of the less fortunate of San Mateo County, whose limbs have been rendered helpless by that dread disease, infantile paralysis, are assured of a new, modren, up-to-date physiotherapy tank, to be installed at the Community Hospital, and that our county tubercular patients, waging a good fight against dread tuberculosis, will now have the necessary improvements made in the tubercular pavalion, was made certain and positive today, when Supervisor Albert J. Witt was notified by Thomas Keene, of the Bayshore Dog Track, that a sum of $5,000 will be donated by the track and set up as a trust fund for humanitarian and charitable purposes in our Community Hospital. This fund will be administered by trustees to be appointed later and the moneys to be expended therefrom will be recommended by Dr. Charles C. Gans, subject to the approval of the trustees.

Payments of this sum will be made weekly to the trust fund from admission fees taken by the track at the gate. This will continue until the full amount of $5,000 has been paid in. The race meet started at Bayshore yesterday, Thursday, January 9, and will continue for several weeks.

Mr. Keene is an exceptionally kind and charitable man and has always contributed generously to every worthy charity. Supervisor Witt, during past months, has made several visits to the Community Hospital and watched little youngsters awaiting their turn for treatment in the present small, inadequate tank. His heart, touched at their helplessness and inadequate facilities at the hospital, prompted him to speak to Mr. Keene, asking aid, fully realizing it was impossible to secure county funds this year for this immediate and most necessary purpose. The result of these conferences is the good news of today.

Supervisor Witt said that the money donated will be allocated as follows:

Two thousand dollars for occupational therapy. This fund provides for the purchase of implements, materials, etc., also for the services of an instructor, wherein the patient's time is occupied in making leather purses, bags, wicker rockers, baskets, etc.

A three thousand dollar fund will provide for the installation of a new concrete tank approximately 18 feet long and 24 feet wide, which will be equipped with all modern, up-to-date sanitary appliances, and will take care of several patients at one time. This new tank will replace the old iron tank, now rusted, with antiquated plumbing devices and which tank is approximately 3 feet long, and six feet wide. Marvelous work has already been done by Dr. Alan Benner, superintendent of the Community Hospital, and his staff in combating this dread disease.

Supervisor Witt also said that Miss Meta E. Kugeler of Menlo Park, one of our best known and most prominent civic workers, will act as one of the trustees for the $2,000 tubercular pavalion award. Miss Kugeler for a number of years has devoted a great deal of her time in providing additional comforts and happiness for the less fortunate, particularly those suffering from tuberculosis at our Community Hospital and her appointment as a trustee is in recognition of her kindness and her unselfish devotion to county tubercular patients and her knowledge of their needs. Other trustees will be named later.

Supervisor Witt requested County Executive Walter T. Kellogg to instruct D. Charles C. Gans, Director of Public Health and Welfare, to set the machinery in motion immediately that these most worthy improvements may be completed without further delay.

HEAR ARGUMENTS ON NEW AUTO LAW

Arguments were heard by the California Supreme Court with reference to the constitutionality of the new state automobile tax law recently.

The American Legion was represented before the court by J. Rufus Klawans, chairman of the Department legislative committee. Pending the court's decision, which may be rendered within a week, it is suggested that veterans act as follows:

1—Defer application for 1936 automobile license and plates until after the decision is rendered.

2—Obtain now official evidence, i. e., discharge orders, etc., showing honorable service with United States armed forces, for presentation at the proper time to representative of the California Department of Motor Vehicles. Such official document will be required.

Watch local papers for further word regarding this matter.

COMPLETION OF COAST ROAD IS ASSURED AFTER HARD STRUGGLE

Efforts Of County Supervisors Crowned By Success Through Granting Of Funds By State Highway Commission This Week—Federal Money For Rights Of Way.

the majority faction of the Board of Supervisors who entered the struggle late but with such aggressiveness that victory was assured.

Last Monday, at the instance of Supervisor Witt, the Supervisors were prompt to send communications of thanks to Highway Commissioner Timothy Reardon and others for their part in making possible the Coast road.

This newspaper believes it to be its duty to its readers and the general public of San Mateo County to unfold before them the part played by Supervisors Francis and Witt in making possible one of the county's most advantageous projects.

Here is the history of the fight for the Coast road which, one day, when completed, will extend from San Francisco, through San Mateo and Santa Cruz Counties clear through to Los Angeles:

Twelve years ago there was born the idea of such a scenic roadway which would when completed, open up a route for the isclated Coastside.

Supervisor Manuel Francis, Coastside representative on the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, was the first to instantly rise to the support of the proposed project.

It seemed nothing but a dream then. It seemed too stupendous, too great to ever become a realty.

There were those who shrugged their shoulders with indifference at the thought of it.

But Supervisor Francis foresaw the importance of such a project. He realized full well what an advantage it would prove to his constituents on the Coastside.

Supervisor Francis visualized the greatness of the project. So he dedicated himself to the task of making such a dream come through.

San Francisco, Santa Cruz and San Mateo Counties joined efforts it making it possible.

But is was not an easy task as the Coastside Supervisor soon discovered. There was much to be overcome.

At times San Francisco wavered. The metropolitan city seemed slow in making good its appropriations toward the road. At times San Mateo County despaired of ever realizing what it so long had cherished.

Once it seemed lost and then San Francisco found itself forced to come to the peninsula for a favor. The war department had decreed that there could not be another bridge built north of the San Mateo-Hayward bridge.

There was a certain faction seeking the granting of a franchise from the San Mateo Supervisors for construction of a bridge at Candlestick Point. This would have ended San Francisco's chances for the San Francisco-Oakland bridge.

In a large delegation the San Franciscans, headed by the late Governor James Rolph Jr., then mayor of San Francisco, came before the board with a plea to deny the Candlestick franchise.

Supervisor Francis was quick to seize the chance for reprisal.

"Make your contribution toward the Coastside road," demanded Supervisor Francis, "and we shall see that your bridge is made possible. The Coastside road is as important to us as the Bay Bridge is to you."

San Francisco immediately pledged an appropriation toward the San Mateo County project.

But, with the denial of the Candlestick Bridge franchise and the San Francisco Bay bridge practically assured, San Francisco again took a hesitant attitude toward appropriating money for the roadway.

The metropolitan city found it necessary to come again to the local Supervisors for a new favor. It sought to build its jail on the peninsula.

Supervisor Francis leaped at the chance.

"What about the Coast road appropriation you promised?" he queried as the San Franciscans came before the board.

San Francisco promised faithfully to make good.

Time passed and then a new face appeared on the San Mateo County Supervisorial board. It was that of Al Witt Jr., and he proved a veritable hurricane for action.

He went to work immediately on the Coast road project. He battered every opposition that presented itself. He never took "no" for an answer. He kept the wires between Sacramento and the peninsula hot with queries, demands and orders for action.

He haunted the Highway Commission and Commissioner Timothy Reardon. He fanned into a new fury the lost enthusiasm that San Mateans displayed whenever the Coast road was mentioned.

When it seemed possible that state gas tax moneys would be diverted to the Waldo approach of the Golden Gate bridge at the expense of San Mateo County he fired a broadside at the Redwood Empire and the Golden Gate Bridge directors and demanded to know why the bridge officials refused federal aid, but instead were seeking to divert to their own project state gas tax moneys.

Already a quarter of million dollars has been expended it making possible the Allemany to Skyline boulevard, Thornton to Edgemar sectors.

The newest portion, the Pedro Mountain sector, is the most hazardous of the roadway to be constructed. Work will begin on it within a few weeks.

Joint Highway District No. 9, through efforts of Supervisors Witt and Francis has already posted $125,000 to match the federal appropriations.

San Mateo County has realized its dream.

Supervisor Francis, a quiet, unassuming man, and Supervisor Al Witt Jr., a dynamic political leader and a man of action, have at least welded the most important link of the Coast road—the Pedro Mountain sector—to the already constructed portions of that great highway that in years to come will stand as a monument to the tireless efforts of these two San Mateo County officials and their faithful following.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

FIRE PREVENTION

(Matches concluded)

By Chief A. P. Chesney

In lighting a match it is important to strike it away from you so that if it breaks or the head flies off it will not be likely to ignite your clothing. Before lighting matches on boxes or books be sure to close the box or paper flap; otherwise the flame may set fire to the matches remaining in the container.

When a box of safety matches is placed in a folder such as is frequently used by smokers, the heads should be downward. Mathces never should be scattered about, nor should they be carried loose in the pockets. They are likely to be dropped out of clothing, and if they are the strike-anywhere type may be ignited by being crushed under foot and thus start a fire.

In the natural course of events, matches will be used in increasing numbers. They will always be dangerous unless people become properly careful in using them.

It has been stated that there are no safety rules more important than those applying to matches and the record of fire losses proves that this is a fact. The matter has been well phrased in this manner, "Matches do not think with their heads." You do the thinking and put them out.
